This charming south facing country villa has been lovingly renovated by the current owners. This villa has a mix of traditional style with modern features, but still being able to retain much of the original charm since being renovated to a high standard. A gravelled driveway gives way to a large south facing ceramic tiled terrace that sits in front of the charming country villa. At the front of the villa is a large covered beamed naya with plenty of casual seating. Here there is a working well made into a feature of this attractive naya. To the left of the naya is a casita with a summer kitchen of large ceramic BBQ, stainless steel sink, gas hob and an electric socket for a beer fridge. Currently used as a workshop would make an ideal studio for painting or other hobbies. To the right of the naya is a small room used as an office by the current owners. A door under the naya leads in to a cosy lounge area with part tiled walls and a lovely log burning stove. An arch at the far end of the lounge provides access to the dining room. To the left of the lounge a door leads in to an inner hallway where to the right is a large store room. To the left is a fully tiled family bathr...
